

Modern Slavery Statement 2023

(1) Introduction:

Canada's Fighting Against Forced Labour and Child Labour in Supply Chains Act ("S-211") (the "Act") came into force on January 1, 2024. The Act requires certain entities to disclose their efforts to address forced labour and human trafficking in their business operations and supply chains. Spur Petroleum Ltd. ("Spur") is considered a reporting entity under the Act as we are a corporation that has a place of business in Canada, has more than $20 million in assets and has generated more than $40 million in revenue in the most recent financial year ending December 31, 2023.

(2) Reporting Entity:

This report covers the activities of Spur Petroleum Ltd. BN 742918493 RC0004 for the financial year ended December 31, 2023. Spur operates in the province of Alberta in the oil and gas extraction sector, and Spur has no subsidiaries.

(3) Supply Chains & Activities:

Spur is in the process of evaluating its supply chains for areas of potential risk, however, as our operations are contained to Alberta with equipment typically sourced from other Alberta based companies, we believe the potential for modern slavery in our supply chain to be low. Spur's operations involve drilling, production and sale of oil all within the province of Alberta. Spur intends on doing a more detailed review of the various third-party service providers and purchasers of Spur's oil to reduce the potential for any operational modern slavery risk, however, we feel this risk is extremely low due to the area of our current operations.

(4) Policies & Due Diligence:

With the Act just coming into force January 1, 2024, Spur is in the process of determining the best practices to ensure we can reduce the risk of modern slavery in any of Spur's supply chains or operations. To date Spur's management team has informed our board of directors, executives and operations groups of our obligations to address modern slavery risk. Members of our senior management group have attended various sessions/presentations to understand how other jurisdictions are dealing with these risks. While Spur feels our risk is likely very low, the company intends to continuously improve processes and inform employees, contractors, and service providers of the company's obligations under the Act.

(5) Actions to remediate forced/child labour and remediate loss of income:

During the reporting period Spur did not take any action to reduce forced and/or child labour nor remediate any loss income. Spur will begin to review and implement our policies and processes to be able to take remedial action if necessary, however, due to the jurisdiction of Spur's operations we believe our risk to be very low.

(6) Training Provided:

Spur has just begun the process of making Spur contractors, employees and management aware of the company's obligations under the Act. Spur intends on making training voluntary while evaluating the risk to Spur's operations and supply chains.

(7) Effectiveness of our Actions:

As Spur is just in the process of evaluating our supply chains and operations for potential risks of modern slavery, we do not yet have policies or procedures in place to measure our effectiveness. As Spur conducts its review, we will determine effective ways to measure the strength of any processes put in place.

(8) Approval:
